

Supporting Educators with next steps in Distance Learning

COSA, in partnership with Corwin, brings you an exclusive book study event

School leaders have the potential to maximize learning across the school, even from a distance. To do so, leaders must spend time developing and maintaining the climate and culture of the school. They should also attend to the learning of the adults, including teachers and parents, as well as the learning of students. Maintaining a focus on instructional leadership is important as lessons are delivered in synchronous and asynchronous ways. However, we should not limit our focus to the now. Let's also use this time to develop mindframes that will serve us well, long after this current crisis has passed.

Dominique Smith

John Hattie

Nicole Law

Opening Keynote — Dominique Smith | December 8, 2020 | 3:30 – 5:00 PM PST

December 15, 2020 | 3:30 – 5:00 PM PST — Dominique Smith and Nicole Law | Developing and Embracing School Climate at a Distance

January 12, 2021 | 3:30 – 5:00 PM PST — Dominique Smith and Nicole Law | Supporting Professional Learning at a Distance

January 19, 2021 | 3:30 – 5:00 PM PST — Dominique Smith and Nicole Law | Instructional Leadership and Mindframes for Leaders at a Distance

Concluding Keynote — Prof. John Hattie | January 29, 2021 | 2:00 – 3:30 PM PST — 10 Mindframes for Leaders

Learn more at:

<https://www.cosa.k12.or.us/events/2020-2021-distance-learning-playbook-school-leaders>

CORWIN